FISCAL ANALYSIS

ASSUMPTION

Officials from the Joint Committee on Public Retirement state that this legislation would not create a substantial proposed change in future plan benefits as defined in Section 105.660(10).

Officials from the Missouri State Employees Retirement System (MOSERS) state the proposal would, if enacted, place a cap on salary that is considered for retirement system purposes for members who first become employed on or after August 28, 2015. As proposed, the monthly cap would be equivalent to one-twelfth of the governor's annual pay, as provided under sections 26.010 and 104.005, RSMo. As a result, any amount exceeding the current monthly pay of the governor would be excluded from the final average pay that is used in calculating a retirement benefit and from the determination of contributions made by members or made by the state based on that members' pay.

A query of MOSERS records indicates that there are presently 63 members with pay exceeding the governor's annual salary of $133,821. (This number does not include state university employees as their replacements would likely be covered by the college and university defined contribution plan as opposed to MOSERS defined benefit plan nor does it include judges who are members of the Judicial Plan covered in Chapter 476, RSMo.)

Due to the small number of employees that would be affected, the proposal is estimated to have no fiscal impact on MOSERS current benefit obligations given the relatively insignificant reductions in overall contributions and benefits.
